Compromise May Lead to Final Treaty Decision

MODIFIED DRAFT OF ARTICLE TEN IS GIVEN APPROVAL

REPUBLICAN AND DEMO-CRATIC LEADERS AS-
SENT TO NEW RES-ERVATION.

SUCCESS IN THE AIR

Developments of Day Expected to Predict Fate of League.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, March 9.—A modified draft of the republicanism article ten reservation to the peace treaty is understood to have been assented to today by a number of republican leaders working with the democrats
for a ratification compromise.

The new reservation was said to follow in general the outline of the original republican proposal adopted last November but to contain a number of changes in wording agreed to at the suggestion of democrats.

Lodge's Approval Expected.
Republican senators who helped work out the modifications in the compromise negotiations seemed confident that the new reservation would have the approval of Senator Lodge and even expressed hope that he might himself offer it in the senate.

It was understood that the democratic leader, Senator Hitchcock, had not given his assent to it.

Democratic Sentiment Slow.
Democratic senators were slow in promising their support while they waited for the republicans to make written to Senator Hitchcock yesterday by President Wilson, reiterating his opposition to any reservation which would impair the full force of Article Ten. Some leaders predicted that before the day was over it might be possible to tell definitely whether the compromise negotiations were to succeed.

Simmons Has Not Agreed.
The changes in the reservation are understood to have grown out of the compromise movement conducted by Senator Vandenburgh, Indiana, for publicans and democrats. Simmons,
North Carolina, for the democrats.
It was said that Senator Simmons had not finally accepted the new draft and that the compromise touch the negotiations were not confident of a final agreement.

President's Letter Debated.
The president's letter on Article
X was debated in the senate. Senator Lodge declaring that it had laid bare the difference in principle between Mr. Wilson and the senate majority.

"There isn't any objection made by the opponents of Article X here," said the republican leader, "that is admitted and admitted that it has

Admiral Sims Criticizes Pre-War Navy in Recital Before Senate Inquiries

Department Blamed For Failure to at Once Put Fighting Resources at Disposal of Allies; Says Outcome Was Jeopardized.

[By Associated Press.]
Washington, March 9.—Admiral Sims today told the senate committee investigating the navy's conduct of the war that the failure of the navy department to act promptly on recommendations and to place the country's entire naval resources at the disposal of the allies within six months after the United States entered the war prolonged the struggle for at least four months. He added that it also unnecessarily jeopardized the outcome.

Declaring that 3,000 lives were lost and $100,000,000 spent every day of the war, the admiral said the conclusions from his statement were obvious.

Criticizes Pre-War Navy.
Admiral Sims said his criticisms were directed at the navy's work in 1917 and "had nothing to do with the magnificent way the navy got into the war."

The navy, he said, was not properly prepared in April, 1917, and the administration was not properly cummunicated. He said he had no qualifications to question the efficiency of the navy's participation in the war, viewed in its entirety and without regard to the time element and
the navy's performance in the war
was "insofar as the machinery that
controlled it permitted."

"I am at the end of my career and have nothing to gain and all to lose," said Admiral Sims.

He wished to set right in the eyes of the country and to refute widespread criticisms that he was "throwing mud at the navy." Admiral Sims declared he said he raised no questions of the efficiency
of the navy's participation in the
war, viewed in its entirety and with-
out regard to the time element and
the navy's performance in the war
was "insofar as the machinery that
controlled it permitted."

"The vote on this question preceded that on Ad. Sims' resolution to place the poles removal ordinance upon its final passage last night. The resolution in the clerk's hands ready to be passed or rejected at any future meeting."

There were 829 signatures to the petition for Sunday opening presented last night, papers have been circulated throughout the city for the past two weeks. The petition was worded as follows:

To the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Janesville:

"The undersigned residents of the city of Janesville, Wisconsin, request you to repeal the ordinance of the

How the Liquor Interests Compute Votes to Carry the Presidential Election.

[By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, D. C., March 9.—Presidential election has made its way into the strategy chamber of the political parties with the prospect that the democrats, at least, will consider surviving in a damp plank in their platform.

The leaders here are against the saloon, against whiskey, against a repeal of the federal prohibition amendment but in favor of a liberal interpretation of the laws and a less drastic enforcement act so that light wines and beers may be made in the home or bought like any other article of food provided the beverages do not contain too much alcohol.

Congress under the amendment to the constitution can define what is intoxicating or non-intoxicating by determining the percent of alcohol that it is permissible to use.
At present the law reads one-half of one per cent.

Democratic leaders
think this is absurd and that the country would not suffer the evils of wetness which the anti-saloon league preached so vigorously if the percentage were doubled or even tripled
the present amount.

How the Democrats Figure.
But the interesting phase of the question is the consideration given to a damp plank as a vote-getter in the next elections. Could the democrats carry the country by it? I present today a table of states which several of the liquor interests have worked out and which they think could be carried with a strong candidate on a platform containing repeal of the federal prohibition and a liberal interpretation of the liquor laws.

It will be noted that in the first group are states of the so-called solid south with certain border states included.

ALLIES TAKE TURK CASE TO PRESIDENT

[By ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, March 9.—As President Wilson has not yet received the question of personally receiving ambassadors resident in Washington,
the decisions reached by the supreme council relative to Turkey
will have been sent to Ambassador Jusserand by the French government will be communicated to him through Acting Secretary of State.

It is understood that the measures are purely coercive and as the American position heretofore has been persistent in the face of the American and other peoples oppressed by the Turks, it is scarcely expected that any opposition will be offered by France, according to the Petit Parisien, which says a restriction imposed to remedy the situation. The government, it is said, will request railways to reduce the number of passenger trains pending a settlement of the trouble.

WAGE INCREASE OR NOTHING SAY UNITED MINERS

Unions to Reject Findings of Coal Commission Unless Given Raise.

[By ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Indianapolis, March 9.—The United Mine Workers of America will refuse to accept the findings of the bituminous coal commission unless the miners are given a wage and improved working conditions are provided. It was inferred in a statement issued today from headquarters of the organization. Officials of the mine workers were absent from the city and those in charge of the offices refused to comment on this statement.

"Nothing short of a substantial increase in wages and improved working conditions will be acceptable to the United Mine Workers of America," reads the statement.

Have Faith in Public
The miners are awaiting the decision with much anxiety. We believe the public will understand our position. Unless a settlement of the controversy is made on such a basis,
the statement says, the miners will not feel that full justice has been done them.

The bituminous coal commission was appointed by President Wilson to work out a suitable report on any plans for improving living conditions
after the strike of miners had ended.

Living Has Not Decreased
There has been a steady increase in the cost of living since the first of this year," reads the statement, "in spite of the fact that the government represented to labor last summer that just as the coal would be reduced, so the government would see to it that this was done.
Further promises of reductions in the cost of living have been made because they have had their experience with such promises
in the past, all of which have gone unfulfilled."

New York, March 9.—Anthracite miners and operators of Pennsylvania opened negotiations for a new wage agreement to become effective March 11, when the present agreement expires. Neither side, it was said by union officials,
carries to proceed to definite conclusions until the award is made by the government. The districts will be handled down.

Music at Home

Marguerite Sylva.

Washington.—Marguerite Sylva,
the internationally famous prima donna, has organized the Washington Opera association. The society has been organized by Miss Margaret Wilson, wife of cabinet members, and other prominent people.

The Washington Opera association formed the nucleus of an organization to promote native opera in this country by local subscriptions. Mme.
Sylva believes such an organization should be national in scope and should receive the official encouragement of the U. S. government, as well as the active support of every American musical artist. She believes also that "every foreign artist coming to the U. S. to play or sing should be taxed a small percentage of his or her earnings to promote this organization."

Mme. Sylva is the wife of Major Bernard L. Smith, U. S. Marine corps. They were married in Paris while the singer was engaged at the Paris Opera. She has a large crowd which roughly handled the French when they left the barracks. The police dispersed the crowd and escorted the officers to their quarters.
The affair was opened immediately.

Allied Officers Assailed.
Still another incident of similar nature occurred in the case of Vosiche Zeltung. It says that yesterday two French officers and an Italian officer stopped a man wearing a field grey uniform, supposing him to belong to the German army, when the man failed to salute them, and that blows followed. A crowd assaulted the allied officers who were considerably injured. The newspaper adds, before they were arrested by the police. The inter allied commission, the newspaper states, left Bremen Monday.

Charleston, W. Va., March 9.— Senator A. R. Montgomery, listed as break the deadlock in the senate this traveling that way, and the special train was arranged at a cost of $5,000. Another special train will

Carrie Jacobs Bond, Janesville's well-known pianist, was the guest of honor at the Trinity church guild luncheon at the parish house on Wisconsin street yesterday. The women were holding an all day session for church work, serving a picnic lunch at noon. After luncheon, Mrs. H. E. Faust, president of the guild, talked. She told of the pleasure it gave her to be home once more, her life out of the home, being so different from that of the average woman in her own home. She was constantly going about the world. Some people envied her, that sort of a life, she said, but it did not bring her the happiness that the home life would. That was what she had wanted all her days, a home, all her own, she remarked, and she had never had it. Until a few years ago. She has built her home in California, where some time, when her work is finished, she comes to settle down and live in her home up where the mountains comfort and protect her, and her beautiful garden always filled with flowers and the birds sing in the trees. This home is one of the show places of California.

A talk on "Our part in Reconstruction Work in France," by Mrs. C. E. Ewing, was a feature of the meeting of the World Wide guild held last evening at the home of Mrs. W. P. Fitchett, 509 South Main street. The talk was illustrated with lantern pictures and post cards collected by Mrs. Ewing in her travels abroad. Mrs. J. T. Fitchett gave a resume of an address on a doctor's work in China, heard by her at the International meeting held recently in Milwaukee. Mrs. W. P. Anderson gave several piano numbers and an original song composed by her for the purpose of raising money for missionary work in China, was sung by the members. Supper was served at 7 o'clock to about 30 of the guests. The meeting was headed by Miss Mary Barker and Mrs. J. T. Fitchett.

Mrs. J. and Mrs. Harry Townsend, 7703 Fifth avenue, entertained a company of young people at their home last evening at a birthday surprise party in honor of their son, Leonard. Dancing and cards made up the entertainment of the evening. At midnight a supper was served.

The missionary breakfast of the L. C. church which was to have been held at the home of Mrs. H. V. Kramer, 519 Fifth avenue, at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, has been postponed till Friday morning, the same hour.

The P. A. L. club will meet this evening at the home of Miss Marion Ryan, Lincoln street. The girls will sew. A lunch will be served.

The Onaway club will meet this evening at the home of Miss Verna Kramer, McKee boulevard. The hostess will serve a lunch at the close of the evening.

Mrs. Howard Lee, 309 Forest Park boulevard, entertained a party of friends this afternoon. Mrs. Lee served tea at 5:30. The guests who enjoyed the affair were all members of a club, one of the oldest social clubs in the city.

Mrs. Raymond Palmer, Halverson flats, Cherry street, will entertain a girls' club Thursday evening, in honor of Miss Ethel Davis, who is leaving Janesville to take up her residence in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Blackman, Harrison street, entertained at a Sunday night lunch. Covers were laid for eight.

HEN RINGS BELL TO WARN MASTER TO GATHER EGGS

ST. LOUIS.—A bell rang in the kitchen of the home of Robert W. Maxton of this city, and was followed by the cackling of a proud hen.

"There's someone at the door," a visitor suggested.

"Oh, no," replied Mr. Maxton, "one of my hens has just laid an egg."

Mr. Maxton (fired of supporting hens that would not lay, he explained, so he installed "trick nests" in his henry.

When a hen enters a nest, a door closes and imprisons the fowl until released by the owner. In this way Mr. Maxton ascertains what hens are laying in the kitchen rings.

The plan has worked successfully for the past several months. Mr. Maxton said, and there have been no false alarms.

Looking Around

MORTGAGE DISCHARGED.—On an opinion given by Judge Grimm yesterday, a mortgage for $5,000 on land in the town of Union from Japheth C. Ellis and wife to Charles H. Spencer was discharged. COUNCIL TAKES NO ACTION ON LIGHT SAVING PROPOSAL

Daylight saving came up for a short and snappy discussion at the council meeting last night, but no action was taken either for or against the proposal. Ald. L. D. Horn of the First ward came out flat-footed in favor of the declaring it to be the best thing in the world for the laboring class, as it furnished them additional hours for pleasure in the evening.

It had been suggested that the question of whether or not the city adopt it this summer be put on the ballot for a referendum at the regular spring election. This would allow the people to decide whether they would prefer to go on a new time basis for the summer or to continue on the present system. The Madison city council voted to put the question up to the people. Menominee's council took the problem in hand and ordered daylight saving by a vote of 10 to 1.

A volume of routine business was disposed of last night. The regular bills and salaries were allowed, together with payment of $543.50 to J. A. Adams for three horses furnished the street department. The monthly report of the water department, municipal court, board of education, police department and visiting nurse were received and placed on file.

Chief W. P. Mason of the San Jose police force was deputized as special police, while the official powers of William Heller, former Du Pont police chief, were revoked.

City Clerk E. J. Sartell was instructed to sell brass license tags which have accumulated and are worthless for present or future use by the city. Upon Ald. Pault's motion a new table was ordered bought for the city clerk's office.

Cure was shown by Ald. Dulin last night in recommending applications for licenses. William Miropolsky was granted a license to sell second-hand goods on South River street, but the application of H. E. Schumann for the same privilege at 430 North Bluff street was laid over two weeks to permit Second ward aldermen to investigate.

In the application of the Patters company for privilege to install a filling station at 23 North Franklin street, Ald. Dulin recommended it be laid over indefinitely until it is learned what is going to be done with the old car tracks on that street. License was granted the Freeman-Sweet company, Chicago, to do electrical work here. The firm has been engaged to wire the new Merchants and Savings bank building.

Steels in a Maxwell that Defy Time

THE steels in a Maxwell are as good as the steels in any car built.

For the very mission of a Maxwell is economy of transportation.

One single superfluous pound burdens the car's efficiency.

Therefore it had to be light—but it had to be strong; it had to endure; it had to stand the worst of road shocks.

To make it strong but light in weight meant the very generous use of those rare steels that provide both.

In that way a Maxwell came to be endowed with steels that defy time, defy wear, defy shock, defy the moods of the careless driver.

You will find a Maxwell delivers extended mileage—as long life as any car built, no matter what the price.

And not only long mileage but economic mileage. Because fine steels give little trouble and light weight spins out the mileage on a gallon of gasoline.

Such traits have made friends for the Maxwell in ever growing numbers—nearly 400,000 to date.

Only 100,000 can be built this year. That means 60,000 will have to take another car besides Maxwell—a second-choice car.

MAY BE DECEIVED.

In another column the Gazette presents a view of the activity of the wet leaders in attempting to carry the issue of prohibition into the campaign. The entrenched liquor interests of the country will not make an effort to force a wet plank on the republican convention as they realize failure would follow. The wet plank seems to be the only hope the democrats have in the coming election. We believe, however, that the leaders are deceived, as constitutional prohibition was never a party measure and the amendment was ratified by states without regard to party lines, democrats being also responsible for the original war measure supporting prohibition and since voting for it almost unanimously in congress.

PRESIDENT WILSON NOT CHANGE.

President Wilson, in his note to Senator Hitchcock, has again reiterated his unwavering stand for the peace treaty and Article X, just as it was written by Robert Cecil, of the British peace mission. It is doubtful if the general public will read more than the bare digest of the letter. When it is said that the arguments are those of three months ago and six months ago the case ends. Unless, therefore, the democrats who have been following the president's lead no matter where that took them, will revolt, the treaty will meet defeat in the senate once more and go to the people at the election as the big issue.

FORWARD, JANESVILLE!

The dinner of the Chamber of Commerce last night was indicative of the new spirit of Janesville, and the end of the week, it is believed, will see the membership of the organized business heart of Janesville up to the thousand mark, the goal set.

With the statement that the Samsen company would increase its plural memberships fifty percent, and with others following the example there will be a good beginning for the canvassers who in teams will start the campaign on Wednesday.

President Craig sounded a note of warning at the meeting when he stated that the time had come when any one in Janesville who dragged along would have to speed up to get on the wagon. He was emphatic that the new element in the activities of the city were forces to which the city must look for the program of progress hereafter. The campaign for the hotel now reaching a successful ending, was evidence that Janesville was meeting the situation in splendid response to the challenge to her patriotism and progressiveness.

Truly those who do not get on the band wagon now will be left at the post hereafter. A new hotel assured and a thousand membership of the Chamber of Commerce means that Janesville has arrived.

It would seem that we are on the verge of a show down for the Turkish empire in spite of the coddling of the Sultan by the allies up to this time. Fresh outbreaks by the murdering Turks and Kurds in Armenia, concentration of bandit and regulars in Thrace and the very evident intention of the Moslem government not to give up its capital or its territory in Europe, has made it a finality on the part of the British and French troops to take drastic action. So long as the seat of government is in the Grand Porte the persecution of the Christian population of the Turkish possessions will remain a blot on the face of civilization.

Such is fame. Mary Pickford gets a divorce and she receives the press agent's heaven in a top line on the front page of metropolitan papers. Gaby Deslys, plaything of kings and royal royalty, dies, and her picture confronts you in magazines and on front pages. The college professor digs out a new formula for the betterment of the world and he counts the pennies of his little salary to see if it will go around. Truly, virtue is its own reward.

The preacher-mayor of Oshkosh is going to run for the United States senate on a wet platform. He avers that Senator Leavort isn't well fitted for the senatorial job. Why does he stop at the senatorship? The presidential entries are still open for the celebrity from Oshkosh.

Without encroaching on the "Ask Us" column we might say to "Anxious Reader" that Sir Oliver Lodge is no relative of Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, and we do this without any reservation. One Lodge deals with disembodied spirits and ouija boards, while the latter has the democratic senate minority as a steady playmate.

It should be entirely unnecessary for any citizen to call attention of the council to the condition of streets and alleys. They are disgracefully dirty. It is time to remove the first layer at least, now that the departing snow has revealed the presence of all manner of filth.

Instead of reporting the number of people in a city would it not be better to give the number of available houses?

KINDNESS IN DEATH.
When death comes stealing through the door,
Your neighbor thinks no more of creed;
The difference that stood before
Has vanished in a kindly deed.
"I'll travel far or guard your gate;
Give me some task that I may do
To soothe your hurt and lift the weight
Of sorrow that has come to you."
"Let me now serve you," low says he,
With every difference forgot;
He would your friend in sorrow be
That in your sunny days would not.

When death shall take us in our turn
And peace shall find each troubled heart,
How trivial were the things we learn,
Which here on earth kept us apart.

these two nations. Later if it is found an agreement cannot be reached, the other nations could, with perfect diplomatic decency, be asked to arbitrate the questions.

One thing Mr. Hoover did not put on the short list during the war was suit, so it is not at all improbable that statements that he is not a candidate, may be taken with several grains of it.

Von Hindenburg will be a candidate for the presidency of the German republic. His motto will undoubtedly be "Kew to the line, let the shells fall where they may."

Kidnaping having become an organized business in Mexico we suggest it be tried on some one worth while, Henry Ford for instance.

Where will Mr. Bryan go if David Lawrence is right and the democratic platform contains a wet plank?

We won't believe spring is coming until the millinery stores have a full stock of Easter hats.

Somebody must have thrown a flashlight in the face of the ground hog last February.

The way pork is going down in price it is no longer a compliment to call a man a pig.

Somebody must have dealt Hoover a full hand the way he is standing pat.

Their Opinions

Industries cannot grow without employing more men. More men in any city implies more places to live. So far as is generally known Janesville is the first city in the state where contemplated expansion of industries has been begun and brought to an abrupt stop by the lack of housing. But it is quite possible that there are other cities where expansion has been contemplated but not begun because this lack was foreseen.

The case in Janesville is an unusual one, one that attracts attention rather forcibly. The cessation of work on new buildings by one of these concerns threw some one thousand men out of employment. That is enough to make people stop and think. It has made the people in Janesville stop and think.

But it is probable that all over the state a lack of housing is acting as a greater or less restraint on industrial expansion. The reason that this lack of housing is not remedied is undoubtedly the high cost of building. Building houses for sale or rental does not seem a promising investment to the individual capitalist and the solution of the problem is not at all an easy one.—Wausau Record-Herald.

Too much stress is put upon reduced hours of labor as a factor of underproduction. The big income and profit taxes have prevented large amounts of capital from being invested in industry, and this deficiency of capital is probably more to blame than the deficiency of labor.—Wausau Record-Herald.

Some of the "moonshine" being manufactured on the quiet these days and without the knowledge of Uncle Sam seems to have a kick that brings in the undertaker.—Sheboygan Press.

Although a federal judge has decided in favor of the 2.5 percent beer law in this state, there is little prospect that the drought will be broken for some little time.—Oshkosh Northwestern.

As often as not a fall in the stock market depresses us out of all proportion; it saddens us to ponder that such a thing can happen and never touch our fortune.—Milwaukee Journal.

It is claimed another government bond issue may be necessary if Congress does not retrench. This will strike some people as a complete solution of the question.—Marquette Eagle-Star.

It seems we are not the only ones criticizing that treaty business, for open attacks have been made on it in the British parliament. So it goes.—Racine Journal.

Backward Glimpses

FORTY YEARS AGO
March 9, 1880.—The Daily Gazette today begins its 44th year.—H. B. Johnson was elected president of the Johnstown Anti-Horse Thief society at their meeting last week at Johnstown house. A. M. Carter is treasurer and John Haight, secretary.—About fifty farmers were in secret session at the Court House today.

THIRTY YEARS AGO
March 9, 1890.—Sunday.

TWENTY YEARS AGO
March 9, 1900.—The Edward Atteley home, near Fulton, was completely destroyed by flames at an early hour this morning. The members of the family, when they found out that they could not save the house, saved as much furniture as possible.—The local militia company will have an encampment of three weeks, this year, instead of four, as usual.

TEN YEARS AGO
March 9, 1910.—Several talks on "Scientific Agriculture" were given at the meeting of the Twilight Club last evening, which was attended by over 100. They were given under the leadership of Prof. H. C. Buell.—T. E. Keely, of the Doty Mill, was nearly killed this morning when a heavy iron flask, weighing nearly a ton, fell on him, as he was unloading it from a truck.

Habana, Cuba, March 9.—The other night a crowded cafe witnessed a meeting between two family parties of Cubans who were evidently old and dear friends long separated. They greeted each other in the emotional manner without everybody embracing everybody else. The men embraced each other as well as the women, who checked and hammering each other on the back with vehemence and a loud thumping noise, after the fashion of a ring lighter delivered a light punch in a clinch. There was one fine old man with white hair and long white mustache who was especially enthusiastic in his greeting, and one could see that some of the younger members of the party were a trifle embarrassed by his heroic caresses, glancing around and appearing ill at ease.

Everybody stopped to look at them and they had some right to feel ill at ease, for the Americans in the cafe—meaning by Americans, citizens of the United States—regarded this exhibition of a charming local custom as a thing which had stopped eating to look on, and they all laughed openly, as though they had the funniest thing they had seen in a long time.

The incident illustrated the fact, which is so apparent here, that there is little natural understanding or natural human intercommunion between the Latin-American and the Anglo-American. Here in Cuba, just to the westward of the United States, in a country which its own countrymen helped to set free, where the memory of Theodore Roosevelt is worshipped with devotion, and where, modeled after our own, the man from the United States finds himself none the less in an utterly foreign country, the two races remain shut at home if he went to Abyssinia, or Thibet. He has absolutely nothing in common with these fellow-Americans of his, except the fact that he is a man, that many visitors yet it is a rare thing to see Cubans and Americans together on the streets or in the cafes.

Have Superficial Differences. And the thing which impresses you is that these two kinds of Americans, who share the same earth, the same hemisphere, are kept apart chiefly by such superficial differences as those of language and social custom. No doubt, if they could understand each other's remarks or tolerate each other's manners, they remain eternally foreign to each other. If they can speak an associated language, men can talk out and settle the most profound differences of politics, religion and point of view; but if they cannot understand each other's remarks or tolerate each other's manners, they remain eternally foreign to each other.

Promenades Is Immemorial. It is most interesting, for example, to compare the evening promenades on the Prado here with the similar event which takes place every warm evening in New York, or in London, or in Paris, or in Washington, and in a less pretentious and formal way in the case of American cities. The fact, this promenade is one of the immemorial and universal customs. You find some form or trace of it almost everywhere. It is a habit of the masses of men, and it is a habit of the masses of women. It is a habit of the masses of men, and it is a habit of the masses of women.

Many Look for Jobs. Yet many young men come down here from the states to look for jobs, who cannot speak a word of Spanish. Such a man should have money enough to live until he has thoroughly mastered Spanish. Then he will make his living with ease. In the local papers, for example, there are always advertisements for stenographers who can write in English, and they are offered from $175 to $200 to start on. Anyone who uses both languages really well is sure to find a job. Furthermore, such a man or woman is an official diplomat, contributing a share to the future peace of America by understanding each other.

ASK US

The Gazette maintains an information bureau at Washington, D. C., under the direction of Frederic J. Haskin. Questions will be answered on any subject. Those desiring information may write a letter to the Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau, Washington, D. C., and enclose a stamped and addressed envelope to be returned by the bureau.

Q.—If a soldier dies in service and later his nearest beneficiary dies, does the policy stop, or would the heirs of the beneficiary draw the insurance?

Q.—In the event of the death of the beneficiary of a government policy, the benefits will be paid to the next of kin within the permitted class, according to the laws of the state in which the intestate resided. Q.—If a beneficiary insurance policy is drawn up like?

A.—The form of war risk term insurance was the same in all cases. In the case of the death of the mother, the benefits of her son's war risk insurance would be made to his brothers and sisters, if the father is not living.

Q.—If the soldier is still living and desires to have his policy cashed, should the policy be paid in monthly payments?

A.—A soldier carrying war risk insurance may convert same into one of the permanent forms, and under the Sweet amendment state whether he wishes it paid in a lump sum or in 36 payments.

Q.—What is the origin of the superstition that a four-leaf clover brings good luck to the finder?

A.—This belief is based on the fact that the four leaves are arranged in the form of a cross. For that reason a four-leaf clover is supposed to possess some magical power, and the one who finds it is supposed to be lucky.

Q.—Who is the present owner of Monticello, the old home of Thomas Jefferson, in Virginia?

A.—Monticello was purchased by the government in 1915 from Congressman Jefferson M. Levy, New York, for the sum of $500,000. It is now owned by the National Park Service. The estate consists of about 750 acres and on the estate, Jefferson, his wife and two daughters are buried. Mr. Levy said Monticello to the government on the condition that it should not be turned into a museum merely, but should be used as a Virginia

SUPERSTITIONS.
To walk under a ladder
Is to have bad luck,
A pet superstition.
We never believed it
Until one time
When we proved it true.
We stepped under the ladder
With line contempt and Wiggled our fingers at Fate.
The ladder was not there.
On the ladder and he Was juggling a gallon of Very green and wet paint.
When he dropped the paint
It engulfed a goat.
Three-dollar hat.
We had just bought
A new well made model $17.50 two-piece suit.

"Does one have to be poor to use good English?" asks a fair young contrabandist. We have never been poor and we have never used good English.

We have bought a wagonload of potatoes, and they will be delivered to the office in a day or two. If we get a day, we have decided to do a little potato peeling as a side line. When we have peeled the potatoes, we will have a few of the luxuries of life which are vouchsafed to the potato-peeler.

"Why do we have no sense, of humor while we are dreaming?" of life.

"Prohibition be hanged," says Lady Hamilton, "up John Bull, New York and you will get Fuller & Fuller with every call."

We have often wondered if a couple of Ford's didn't go up the gangplank of the ark that Noah built. The race seems to be as preposterous in number as any of the other lower forms of life.

Regardless of the well-known and widely known fact that there is a shortage of the "Congressional Record," continues to make the trains promptly on time and without any reduction of fares.

The telephone company threatens to multiply all charges for calls made during the night, and to multiply the charges for calls made during the day. But, can't it give us just a couple of wrong numbers when the call is made at night? That would help preserve the traditions.

HINDENBURG TO ENTER RACE FOR PRESIDENCY

Berlin, March 9.—Back of yesterday's announcement that Field Marshal Hindenburg will consent to run for the German presidency is the absolute confidence of the men organizing the campaign that he will be elected. This confidence was manifested in an interview with Dr. Gustav Stresemann, leader of the Deutsche National People's party, and one of the fathers of the Reichstag resolution demanding an early election.

"No one in the party is able to doubt whether a call is made to the next president. A man having the confidence of the people and whose tendency is a little more to the right than to the left will be the next president. It is certain there will be no socialist candidate. This party never had a majority and is able to remain in power only through a compromise between the bourgeois and the center. This is weakened more every day by the increasing socialist vote of the farmers. The independents are gaining steadily from the majority socialists."

"What are the results of the reichstag contest?" "The democrats and majority socialists have suffered big losses. The centerists have not enough. But the completion has changed the agrarians and bourgeois faction constituting the right wing becoming more prominent."

"What do you think of the outcome of the Reichsberger tangle?" "I am convinced that the center will not win. The center is not as strong as the court decision is announced he will go, having lost the confidence of the electors and his party."

"What about reorganization of the cabinet?" "Believe, with the exception of Erzberger, who will be replaced by a financial man, the cabinet will remain intact because of the important business conducted by the cabinet. We hold out until dissolution of the assembly and the election and they will disappear for good and ever."

TRAVELETTE
By Nilsen.

WHERE GRAY WROTE HIS ELEGY.

England is sometimes described as a land of churchyards, and the tourist usually feels that when he has seen one collection of medieval grave-stones he has seen them all. There is a great deal more to be seen in the country, however, and the traveler who is interested in the old Stoke Poges where lies Gray of Elegy fame. "Elegy in a Country Churchyard" is a poem which has been read by millions of people. Most travelers have got over the effect of these important experiences when they come to Stoke Poges. The lines of Gray drift out of the memory of subconsciousness, and you actually see and feel what the poet described. This is the charm of the old English churchyard—and of Gray's poem.

If You've Any Doubts as to whether coffee is a friend to your nerves, drink two or three cupsful at bedtime and think about it during the wakeful night.

POSTUM
"There's a Reason"

As you sit there listening to the birds chirping the wind play in the leaves of the church walls you will at least remember the first line of the old elegy—"The curfew tolls the bell of evening day," and possibly that famous line—"Far from the madding crowd's ignominious strife." On a corner by a stone marked with the name of Dorothy Gray, the poet and his mother Dorothy lie together. There is a handsome monument to the poet not far from the churchyard. It is a simple little slab in the mecca which draws more pilgrims than any other grave in England, excepting Shakespeare's.

Heart and Home Problems

By ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl twenty years old and have been keeping steady company with a fellow who has asked me to become his wife. I don't care for him as much as I do the other one. Would it be right for me to keep his presents and jewelry, or should I return them?

The other fellow hasn't presented me with as many presents, but I think just as much of him. Should I give one up and keep steady company with the other?

UNDECIDED.
Let love and not presents govern your choice. Yes, I think you should return the gifts of value to the young man who wants you to marry him. It is better that he should know that you do not love him. He may want to remain your friend; in this case do not accept any more jewelry. I can see no harm in keeping both as friends if you want to.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl seventeen years old. I keep company with a boy twenty-three years old. He won't let him come to the house to see me. I love him very much.

Father is cross to me all the time. Would it be all right for me to run away and marry the young man?

You must obey your father. Since you are only seventeen, trust him to know what is best for you.
You say that your father is always cross to you. Have you stopped to think that you are not doing as you wish to do as he wishes you to? Or two more will add much to your judgment and discretion. The fact that you consider running away to marry shows that you need to be guided by your father.

To runaway would bring you great unhappiness. You would be brought back with a ruined reputation.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am thirteen years old and go with a girl sixteen years old. I have gone with him almost a year. I love him dearly. Not long ago his wife came back on a visit and he went to see her several times and came to see me, too.

He treated me fine before she came and wanted me to marry him, but she has gone away and he doesn't seem to care for me as he did before. He was very sick and I helped care for him, and if I say anything about feeling bad he tells me to forget it. He doesn't even say a thing about marriage now. If I say anything that doesn't sound right he gets angry and makes light of me, which hurts me.

He never takes me any place I want to go. I have to go by myself. People talk about me for letting him treat me that way, but I am trying to make the best of it.

I had a sweetheart and he went to France and died over there. I loved him and I never went with any one except him and this one I go with now.

Jewelry, of which you are not conscious, may be the cause of your unhappiness. Probably the man cares just as much for you as he did before his wife came, but now you are looking for slight.

I do think, however, that you should give him up. He is selfish and he would try to please you by taking you places you want to go. As your age you do not need to think of marriage. Simply enjoy the friendship of your young man. Sometime a real love will come to you; be patient and wait for it.

She Married an Average Man

By ZOE BECKLEY.

A woman is a constant revelation to herself. I used to wonder how I would act if I ever married. I would be reasonable, I told myself. I would not imagine things that had no reality. Once if there some real cause for anxiety I would keep my head and behave with patience and dignity. Ah! that was in the safe days when I had no problem save those of adjustment to the newness of marriage, as every young wife has. But now that the thing has come to me, am I behaving as I prophesied? Indeed not. I find no one can tell how they will act in a given circumstance until the circumstance arrives. I am behaving with all the unbalance and lack of reason that I used to condemn in other women.

In vain I try to discipline my spirit, telling myself hourly: "It is only because I am not my normal self. Every woman whose dream of motherhood is about to come true must have another peaceful moment until Rose Green and her lures and coquetries are where they can torment my racked nerves no longer."

"Oh, no," said Jim, "if I didn't make allowances for your overwrought state I should think you had lost your mind. You are not a woman who will become one of those women who allow jealousy to grow on them like a chronic sickness. And such women are either pitiful or ludicrous."

His words added fuel to the fire. "That is cruel and untrue!" I cried. "If this girl is nothing to you, if you did not enjoy her kitten ways and the danger of the challenges she flings at you, you would have given her the letters of introduction long ago and seen her on her way to New York. But even conservative, well-balanced women like you, Jim, love to have their vanity stimulated. Oh, you may not even realize it, but it's true. Men are all alike. Any pretty child of a girl if she's darling enough can swing any man out of balance."

"Jim, can't you see I'm right? I don't want people in the village talk of you as they do about Charlie Barnes and the others. And you're making me perfectly miserable."

"Come, Ann, I think we have had enough of this foolish talk. A man doesn't like to be forced against his judgment to follow a course which is particularly marks out for him. A man wants to dispose of his own actions as he sees fit. You are literally compelling me to mix into the affairs of this girl just to satisfy a whim of yours that she is a dangerous person. You are making a mountain of a mole hill. You ought to trust me."

"That is what a man always says when he wants to go on playing a game. You don't know women as I do, Jim. You can't see a situation like this in a mole hill. Very well, I see it through the magnifying eyes of woman's instinct and woman's love. Oh, Jim, I am taking pleasure in your inability to see a great responsibility for you! Do this thing for me. Give Rose Green her letters. Get her a position in New York and have them dated before I go crazy with hate and fear."

cracker or bread crumbs. Use one-half cup cold boiled rice or cold boiled potatoes or use the crumbs, but add a tomato or green pepper cut fine that you may have in the ice box.

Put in cold oatmeal which may have been left from breakfast.

DISCOVERIES
Yolks of Eggs—When making con- dies, frostings, cake or anything requiring only the whites of eggs, the housekeeper is sometimes puzzled as to the best way of utilizing the yolks. They may be kept fresh a surprising length of time if covered with cold water and kept in cool places. They will not harden and may be used at any time in making salads.

GOOD MEAT DISHES
Casseroles of Rice and Meat—Wash one cup of rice in two or three waters until it runs clear, drain, throw into a kettle of boiling water 20 minutes, strain and set back on the stove or in the oven to swell and dry. Take one-third of cooked rice and set aside. With the remainder line the sides and bottom of a well buttered casserole. To one pint of cold minced meat add one or two well beaten eggs, two tablespoons of bread crumbs and a sliced onion. Two ta- spoons of butter substitute, salt to taste.

Pick in the center of the casserole coarsely with hot water and cook covered one hour. Serve with to- mato sauce.

Spanish Meat Loaf—Mix one pound ground pork and two pounds ground beef together with two eggs, one cup tomatoes, salt and pepper. Put into loaf pan and empty balance of one quart of tomatoes on top of loaf with bits of butter and pepper. Bake two hours in moder- ate oven.

Meat Loaf—One and one-half pounds round steak, one-quarter pound pork ground together, one-half cup cracker or bread crumbs, one egg, one-half cup milk, pepper and salt. Mix thoroughly, press in a tin, place two or three strips of bacon on top a little water. Bake 2 1/2 to 3 hours. You can make this meat loaf by using some leftovers in place of meat.

ANSWER—As wholesome as the bread. By cleanliness and keeping the yeast fresh, you have an yeast second to none.

To Keep Cereals Fresh—Don't rip off the waxed paper covering cereal packages. Instead, with a sharp knife cut the waxed paper all around two inches from the top and slip off care- fully. Open the packages in the usual way, take out what you require, close the box, and put the waxed paper back over the cut on top of opened box end.

Oiling the Stove—Rub oil upon iron cooking utensils and iron top of the stove. Leave on a few moments and then cover with alum. After cleaning this off they will look like new.

Reluctantly, the chauffeur turned around and picked up the bag, nar- rowly missing a trip to the hospital or cemetery, as a big auto truck thundered by.

"It's a wonder you muffs wouldn't thank a fellow," said Goggles, in dis- gust, and started to walk away.

"Thank you? Get the dence out of here. We're busy. You're lucky we don't have you locked up for steal- ing the mail!"

Just then the careless mailman ap- peared and saw the bag and then looked at Goggles.

"Say, what the dickens did you drop that bag for?" asked the boss.

"I've got a good notion to fire you!" "Drop it? Why, this is the fellow that stole it from me!" yelled the mailman, to save his skin, we im- agine.

"What's that?" yelled the outraged Goggles, pushing his fist under the mailman's nose.

It took 10 employees to subdue Goggles, and he was jailed for re- buling the mails.

"Thank you? Get the dence out of here. We're busy. You're lucky we don't have you locked up for steal- ing the mail!"

DIAMOND CUT DIAMOND

"You may as well tell that young man of yours," growled he, "that he don't let me in till I break the door in."

"I don't think you will," she said calmly.

"Now see," he said, "I came for, he said, taking hold of the door and trying to move it and finding it mysteriously wedged open.

"Well, you'll not do that this trip," said she with spirit. "He isn't there—and he wasn't there. He was in the sitting room at the end of the hall—the window to the square room, the door of which he could see stood open—and while you were strolling upstairs he was out for a policeman. If you don't believe it wait and see for yourself."

At that the fellow seized her arm and tried to pull her back into the house and shut the door, but found it still wedged open. He could not see with what, as he was on the inside. But the moment he laid his hand on the door handle, "Help!" he heard as loudly as ever she could. He didn't wait to see what happened—as a matter of fact nothing

HANDY BOYS MAKE KITE REELS FOR MARCH SPORT

By G. M. Hyde.

Reel for boys to make.

A growl, a metallic hiss, and a rattling once in a while. What kind of machine is that under the eaves of your house? It ought not to make all that noise flying a kite.

"It's a kite-reel, I made," said Jack.

Kite Reel Does the Work

In the reel shown here the framework consists of a flat bottom (V) about 6 in. by 8 inches, two side pieces (T and Y), each 2x10, and a top 5 1/2 by 2. The reel itself is a large linen thread spool (R) with two flanges of cigar-box wood (S and S'), each 4 1/2 inches in diameter, fastened to its ends. For a pivot use a piece of old brass curtain rod, passing the spool up the rod by filing flat spots of the rod just where it passes through the two ends of the spool and driving in wooden wedges against the flat spots. If the crank end of the pivot is filed roughly into square shape, the crank (X) can be fitted to it securely.

The crank is made of a piece of wood 4 inches long with a long nail driven through for a handle. Run the kite string through a hole in the crank, and the kite will fly. A loop of cord tacked on at W can be slipped over the crank handle to hold the reel and keep the kite from running out. The framework and other parts must be built carefully and strongly to stand the pull of the kite and the wind.

An Every-Day Kite

Three sticks, one 20 inches long and two, each 24 inches long, comprise the framework of a kite every day. Each stick should be 1/2-inch thick and 3/4-inch wide and should have a notch in each end. Find the exact center of each and bind them

Woman were seen carrying large burdens.

I suppose the men there are just like they are everywhere else," the wife said.

The man made no reply.

Women were next seen driving oxen in the fields.

Men are men, the world over," the feminine spectator observed.

The next view showed men sitting on the bank of a river watching women washing clothes in the water.

Several more pictures were shown and then came one in which a necktie was seen being played "nurse girl" for a baby while the mother was gossiping with several of her friends.

DOCTOR ADVISED CHANGE OF CLIMATE

Run Down and Lung Hurt—Stayed Home and Gained 22 Pounds.

"In November, 1911, I had a severe cold and influenza, which left me a cold and a cough. My lungs and shoulder blades hurt so I couldn't sleep and I finally had to give up my job and was ordered to change climate. In April, 1912, I began taking Mils Emulsion. On the second bottle I could see a change. My appetite was better and I commenced to gain strength and weight. Now, (August 23, 1912) I have used 22 bottles, have increased 22 pounds in weight and believe I am permanently cured."—W. F. Bourland, 4014 1/2 Ave. City, Texas.

Mr. Bourland was fortunate in commencing to use Mils Emulsion when he did. A run-down system in winter disease, Mils Emulsion cost nothing but try.

Mustard

for Backache, Lumbago

Grandmother's old mustard plaster or poultice generally brought relief, but it burned and blistered the skin.

"Heat" reduces the inflammation and swelling, but it burns and blisters the skin. Mustard, made of true yellow mustard and other pain destroyers is just as hot as the old-fashioned plaster. It is much quicker, cleaner and more effective and cannot blister.

It's a great external remedy—just rub it on wherever aches, pains, inflammation, congestion or swelling exists and in a very few minutes the relief you have longed for surely arrives because "Heat cures pain." 50c and 60c at druggists or by mail S. C. Wells & Co., LeRoy, N. Y.

The Doctor Says:

"You Never See Aged Fat People"

The physician is telling these two patients, each of whom feels "more or less upset most of the time" that if they reduce their weight they will become healthier, more contented and longer lived.

Overstoutness imperils the health in many ways. The accumulations of adipose tissue, packed around the vital organs, cause serious diseases. One of the most dangerous being the liability to sudden HEART FAILURE. If you are corpulent, you know the strain upon your heart, particularly when compelled to undergo some unexpected activity. Your life is no stronger than your heart. Don't risk untimely death. Ask any physician what this means!

REDUCE WEIGHT HAPPILY!

Fat people are often victims of apoplexy, colic, neuralgia, or other ailments. The risk of accidents is greater than among persons of normal weight. When fat you have longed for surely arrives because "Heat cures pain." 50c and 60c at druggists or by mail S. C. Wells & Co., LeRoy, N. Y.

FINANCE

Wall Street Review.
New York, March 9.—General Motors and Crucible Steel extended their gains on the stock market this morning, only to react 10 to 12 points on realizing sales. Other motors and steels, also equipments and oils, were 2 to 5 points higher with shipments and miscellaneous shares, but pressure caused a general easing of prices in those issues. Odd lots of Atlantic Refining, a Standard Oil Subsidary, sold at $1.50, a gain of 150 points. It was not until the second hour that rails became active and strong, gaining 1 to 3 points. Coalers led with Readings, Pacific following and then the secondary or lower priced issues. Call money opened at 3 percent. Firmness ruled at the active opening of today's stock market, some of ably to yesterday's gains, while others reacted. General Motors, the sensational feature of the preceding session, made an early gain of four points, which was extended to 10 points within the first half hour. Crucible Steel lost 2 points at the outset, immediately reversing its course, soon showing an actual gain of 12 points. The stocks of other companies which are expected to revise their dividend policy as a result of yesterday's supreme court decision, averaged initial gains of 1 to 2 points. United States Steels was the only stock to record a "wide opening," a block of 5,000 shares changing hands at 101 to 100½, an extreme rise of ½ of a point.

from 3 to 5 points. Foremost retailers comprised Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, Norfolk and Western, Union Pacific, New York Central and Louisville and Nashville. Strong specialties were represented by Sears Roebuck, May Department Stores, Wilson and company and tobaccos at gains of 3 to 6 points.

for the ones nominated and reduced dealings of the final hour, mostly at additional advances. Elsewhere further selling for profits impaired many gains. The closing was firm.
